

The Great Weight Debate

Havering's Director of Public Health, Susan Milner, has published her independent Annual Report, this year choosing childhood obesity as the focus.

Latest information on childhood obesity, collected via the National Child Measurement Programme, shows that we are nearing a quarter of Havering children being overweight or obese when they start school, increasing to more than a third by the time they leave primary school.

Residents are invited to share their views on how children in our borough can be supported to lead healthier lives as part of a new London-wide campaign: The Great Weight Debate – a London conversation on childhood obesity.

Have your say now by completing the Great Weight Debate survey!